NORTHERN SPARK

JUNE 14, 2014

Welcome to the fourth annual Northern Spark—an all-night arts festival that lights up Minneapolis on June 14, 2014!

On the second Saturday of June each year, tens of thousands of people gather along the Minneapolis riverfront and throughout the city to watch giant video projections, play in temporary installations in the streets, and enjoy experimental performances in green spaces and under bridges. From dusk to dawn the city surprises you: friendly crowds, glowing groups of cyclists, an unexpected path through the urban landscape, the magic of sunrise after a night of amazing art and experiences. Northern Spark is the one-night arts event people talk about for the rest of the year.

Our theme in 2014 is “Projecting the City.” We asked dozens of artists to project onto Minneapolis—onto its architecture and its infrastructure—their idea of what the city could be, might aspire to be, never should become. These projections are literal or imaginative and take many forms, from video to dance to music to interactive events. We invite you to participate in this reimagining of the city, whether by performing as a Folkalopolis singer (B9), posting a missive into the night (A7), attempting to solve the great Northern Spark art heist mystery (A20), adjudicating a Write Fight (B4), rebalancing your life on a seesaw (A6), or even projecting yourself on the iconic Gold Medal silos of the Minneapolis skyline (B30).

This is your city. What will you make of it? This is your community. How will you participate in it? This will become our future. How will you shape it? What will you discover at Northern Spark that encourages you not only to see the city in a new light but to act on it, every day?

Northern Spark is presented by Northern Lights.mn, a nonprofit arts organization with the mission to transform our sense of what’s possible in public space. Northern Spark is one night, but Northern Lights.mn shines throughout the year.

Thank you for joining us. Let’s project the city we want tonight.

GETTING AROUND

Travel to the festival by car, bike, bus, or foot.

RESOURCES FOR CYCLISTS

Cycling is a great way to cover a lot of ground and gain easy access to the art throughout the night. If you bike to Northern Spark, don't forget a safety light, helmet, and bike lock.

NEED TO PARK?

Minneapolis Bicycle Coalition is hosting a corral for bike parking on W River Parkway near the Third Ave bridge. Swing by the corral for a quick fix, pump up, or good chat about a more bicycle friendly city.

The City of Minneapolis is providing bike racks at the Convention Center Plaza.

GOT A FLAT?

Stop by one of the three official Northern Spark Info Hubs to pump up your tires with air courtesy of Alley Cat Cycles. Or swing through one of the following partner locations for air and bike first-aid:

Minneapolis Bicycle Coalition's corral is on W River Parkway.

Alley Cat Cycles in Loring Corners will be open for last minute fix-it needs, air, and even cool tutorials.

Freewheel Midtown Bike Center on the Greenway will staff a mechanic until 10:30 pm.

NICE RIDE

Check out Nice Ride, the Twin Cities bike share system. A 30-day membership of unlimited 60-minute trips is $15. Nice Ride stations convenient to festival venues are marked on all festival maps.

METRO TRANSIT

The Light Rail Transit (LRT) Green Line opens in time for Northern Spark!

On June 14 and 15, all buses and LRT rides are FREE. Jump on and ride! Please note: Metro Transit does not run all night. Blue Line LRT service ends at 1 am and resumes at 5 am. Green Line LRT is open 24 hours. Bus routes end at varying times.

PARKING PANDA

Northern Spark has partnered with Parking Panda, the nationwide leader in online parking reservations, to make your trip stress-free with guaranteed parking passes. Street parking will be limited and will fill up on the day of the event, so it is strongly recommended that you purchase parking passes for Northern Spark in advance if driving.
Exclusive Partner Offer: Go to parkingpanda.com/northern-spark-parking and use discount code “NorthernSpark” at checkout for an automatic 20% off your purchase for Northern Spark.

UBER

First ride $25 off: Let Uber transport you at Northern Spark. Download the app on your smartphone and enter promo code NSPARK14 to receive $25 off, first time riders only. Visit uber.com/go/NSPARK14. Questions? Contact Uber at supportmsp@uber.com.

car2go

Walk up to your closest car2go, sign in, drive, and park in any public metered space. car2go membership includes gas, insurance, and public parking meters, so there's more time for you to spend at Northern Spark, less worrying about parking. More at Minneapolis.car2go.com

PLANNING YOUR NIGHT

Several tools are available to help you plan your adventure at Northern Spark.

WEBSITE

With 125 projects and 505 minutes, there is a lot to see and experience at Northern Spark. The Art and Events section of our website lists each project and can be sorted by artist name, project title, or time. Filters allow you to view projects by area, site, or presenting partner. Plan your own route or leave it to chance.
www.northernspark.org.

MOBILE APP

Smartphone users will be able to navigate Northern Spark with a mobile app (iOS and Android) that contains key information about the projects and venues, including maps, times, locations, and services.

SOCIAL MEDIA

To keep up with the latest festival news, subscribe to the Northern Spark Bulletin at www.northernspark.org.

Like us on facebook.com/NorthernSparkMN.

Follow us on Twitter @Northern_Spark.

Watch Northern Spark videos on Vimeo:
vimeo.com/northernspark.

Share your Northern Spark moments and pictures through the hashtag #nspk. Each project has a unique hashtag, such as #nspkA20 (the project's specific number is next to the project description). Use these hashtags to identify projects on social media and to connect with posts by other festival visitors, staff, and artists.

INFORMATION HUBS

Start your art adventure at any of the nine Northern Spark Information Hubs marked on the festival maps. Pick up the festival guidebook or talk to the friendly volunteers. Three main Info Hubs (tents), two located on W River Parkway and one at Convention Center Plaza, will have information about organizations participating in the festival, first aid supplies, and night-of-festival updates.

Want to help support the festival? Volunteers will be ready at each Info Hub to accept your tax-deductible donation or help you purchase the perfect Northern Spark souvenir.

WEATHER

Northern Spark happens rain or (moon)shine! There is no alternative rain date. Dress appropriately for the weather. Extreme weather may delay some events or require projects to be altered.

In the case of weather-related changes on the night of the festival, the best places to look for updates in real time are on our Facebook page or on Twitter. Look for the #nspk hashtag. Also check northernspark.org, individual venues, or ask at a Northern Spark Info Hub.

ACCESSIBILITY

Northern Lights.mn is committed to providing barrier-free access to contemporary art wherever possible. Projects identified with a wheelchair symbol are ADA accessible. All festival venues are ADA accessible, but some projects are in unconventional spaces and may not be fully ADA accessible. Large-print versions of this guidebook are available at the three main Information Hubs.

BATHROOMS

All-night bathrooms are marked on festival maps.

Benjamin Entner Ego Sum

Benjamin Entner is a multidisciplinary artist with an eclectic studio practice based in Oswego, New York. The constants in his artistic production are his sly sense of humor and the importance he places on obsessive craft.

His contribution to Northern Spark, Ego Sum, was commissioned and is presented by The Soap Factory. It explores the boundaries between two- and three-dimensional methods of making art and the role that sculptural representation of individuals plays in public space—the point at which a drawing becomes a form and an object becomes a representation. Entner calls the inflatable a “sculptural drawing”: the image is simply sketched in Sharpie marker on fabric, sewn together with other drawings of the same pose, back and front, and then inflated, in the same way as a kid’s backyard bouncy castle would be.

Entner makes his art with an academic awareness of art historical precedents. Ego Sum directly references—or parodies—the public figurative sculpture of the Renaissance masters, who revered the male nude as the highest of the natural forms: man portrayed in all his divinely fabricated perfection. This sculpture, however, is a self-portrait. Entner, a man of the twenty-first century, is not Michelangelo’s David but instead the everyday body that we each encounter every morning. The bathos of the contrast between the heroic and idealized aspirations of classical sculpture and our own humdrum reality is a sarcastic and abject riff on the folly of human ambition.

A naked statue cannot be identified as any particular individual, since, as the divine intended, we are all the same under our clothes. Classical statuary thus was identified by context and attribute (we know that Michelangelo’s David is the biblical David because he holds a sling). Entner’s inflatable holds a skull and is located at the Guthrie Theater: we identify that representation as Shakespearean, Hamlet in his soliloquy at the grave of the jester Yorick. But what does the viewer really see here? If the man who holds the skull at the Guthrie is Hamlet, does it mean that anyone who holds a skull at the theater is Hamlet? If Entner’s inflatable put down its skull, would we still recognize it as Hamlet?

These inflatables perform the traditional function of sculpture (they have form, they represent, they occupy space), but they can be installed, consumed, viewed, and then removed all within an afternoon. They are at the same time both completely permanent and absolutely temporary, with a form that is a joke and a narrative that is deadly serious. Instead of hard and inflexible marble or bronze, we have insubstantial canvas and fresh air.

In a world where it is increasingly difficult to achieve consensus of how we memorialize—still less whom we memorialize—Benjamin Entner proposes the perfect solution: everyone, for one night only.

—Ben Heywood, Executive Director, The Soap Factory

HOTTEA La Maroma

It is remarkable how much personal and familial history informs the art of Eric Rieger, also known as HOTTEA. The assumed name of this public installation artist originates in the memories of his mother's habitual dessert, hot tea and cornbread.

His medium of choice is skeins of yarn, which he uses to transform the not-quite-visible barriers of the ubiquitous chain link fence into the skeleton structure of his urban installations. The form of the fence, the grid on interlocking links, defined and developed HOTTEA's style, aided and abetted by his study of graphic design. Taught to knit by his grandmother at a young age, he works with yarn in another nod to the family history that increasingly runs through his practice (and yarn is inexpensive and available in a spectrum of colors).

Recent HOTTEA installations have moved beyond the chain link fence and into new areas, both physically and personally. Two years ago HOTTEA suspended approximately eighty-four miles of yarn in the Minneapolis Institute of Arts; the warm-colored yarns hung from a grid not unlike the Cloud series by the late fiber artist Lenore Tawney. Now, for Northern Spark, La Maroma brings HOTTEA's characteristic yarn creations to the greatest underrecognized barrier in the Twin Cities, the Mississippi River.

Suspended under the Third Avenue Bridge at West River Parkway, La Maroma is a site-specific installation of multicolored yarn supporting a slatted bridge on which figures appear to advance from one end to the other. The piece is inspired by his mother, who often recounted stories (typically uneventful but sometimes harrowing) about crossings of the Ayutla River in Mexico.

We mark our relationship to the river by our means of traversing it. Before a bridge that spans a river is built, we either travel with its flow or challenge it in our fording. In La Maroma, HOTTEA envisions a rainbow bridge across the river, one that recalls light seen through the spray thrown up in rapids. But the bridge is also the scene of uncertain drama, as people help one another and protect each other from the risks of the treacherous crossing. The colorful yarn brings to mind that rainbow bridge of Norse mythology, Bifröst, uniting heaven and earth. Conceived in the personal mythology of familial history and youthful memories of his mother's descriptions of the perilous journeys across another river, the vision HOTTEA expresses in La Maroma reminds us of the dangers and the promise taken for granted in the crossing of every bridge.

Monkey with a Mustache

MysteryPhone: Art of Darkness

An art heist. Missing persons. Missing cat.

Jerry Belich is a master criminal. He plans his crimes with care. They are masterpieces of misdirection. They are executed with clockwork precision. Jerry Belich is the Napoleon of Crime and, like Napoleon, he is pretty short.

Jerry Belich employs only the best. No mere goons, these. His team is peerless in its villainy: David Pisa is a walking shadow, Megan Dowd keeps to the fringes, and Brian Quarfoth, expert bagman, keeps it all running, keeps you running. This is Jerry Belich's team. They are the art in the darkness.

Jerry Belich knows who you are. You are a master detective.

You have been waiting for this night. You have searched for clues in the newspapers; you have interviewed lowlifes. You will pound the pavement, you will ask the tough questions, you will make choices that cannot be unmade. Tonight you tread the mean streets, you delve deep into Minneapolis psycho-geography. Its buildings and alleyways are no longer comforting; they are the scenes of an urgent mystery. Each brick speaks a paragraph; each step is a move in the game.

You'll spend a lot of time on your phone. Your MysteryPhone.

MysteryPhone: Art of Darkness is the latest of Jerry Belich's interactive narrative games. In previous works such as Choosatron, he transformed the story-game format to create a customized reading experience for each player. Northern Spark's MysteryPhone greatly expands the parameters of his interactive storytelling.

MysteryPhone is something like a live-action Choose Your Own Adventure book, because you make choices that advance the story. It's something like How to Host a Murder, because you solve crimes. Like The Big Sleep, it's a mystery.

Jerry Belich has woven a complex web of narrative possibilities among multiple real-world locations. Clues and narrative elements are place-based and occur in real time, delivered to your phone. You decide which leads to pursue or ignore, and the story you experience is unique, unlike that of anyone else.

Your phone is the center of the mystery. Your phone tells you things, and shows you things, and asks you things. You tell it where you go and you tell it what you do. And when you tell it these things, you tell Jerry Belich, too.

Jerry Belich knows where you are—right now, this moment—and when you decide what to do next, he will know that, too. Jerry Belich is one step ahead of you. He has planned it all, and he does not believe that you can prevent his crimes or solve his mysteries. But you believe differently. You will make Jerry Belich believe it, too.

Jerry Belich has a heart of noir. He works his evil in the dark places of your city. But you, detective, will light a spark.

A northern spark.

—Pat Harrigan, Writer-at-Large

Jefferson Pinder Relay

If there were no inequity, then Relay would be a simple literal narrative with people performing actions in an environment without opposing forces. In today's world, Jefferson Pinder's video and performance installations fall into basic parables, applied to current conditions on race, class, the opportunity gap, immigration, and possibilities. You could decide to play out each one through the story to a conclusion, forming one among many interpretations. Yet Pinder's works suggestively focus on recurring elements (specifically, Black bodies in motion), and we now apply layers of meaning and infinite consequences to obtain multiple truths and combinations of realities.

In sports, we view strain and effort as indications of passion and dedication. In contrast, performing arts training typically masks these industrialized bodies, elevating poise and ease as signals of great accomplishment. The Minnesotan bodies in Relay persevere in performance elegantly and athletically. We witness the impact of the ground under their feet. We imagine the pounding of their hearts inside their chests. We sense their goals and struggles inside every movement: this is how our minds play out their histories.

Race* brings us together for a cause. Many align to face together in a single direction. We see parts of ourselves in every one of the runners. Stories vary. Generations carry differing perspectives and potential. Or not. Movement animates spirit and we want to know what is behind an individual's journey. We recognize our city, our people, our neighbors. As witnesses watching a video, do we fill in the backstories to define the extraordinary in order to explain the ordinary or promote the ordinary to become the extraordinary?

Each stride is a rhythm. Pace is a part of life. Momentum gives energy and purpose. Interferences are the enemies. We know the rules even if we didn't make them up. When the odds are stacked, we see the injustices. When do we become emotionally tied to the competitors? What defines our actions? We are all implicated in this race.

—Michèle Steinwald, Dance Curator and Writer

*race: noun. 1. a competition between runners, horses, vehicles, boats, etc., to determine the fastest over a set course; 2. (a) a family, tribe, people, or nation belonging to the same stock; (b) a class or kind of people unified by shared interests, habits, or characteristics.

Luke Savisky E/x MN

Beaming, bending, and animating light, Luke Savisky transforms natural and architectural environments into magical experiences. In today's rapid world of high-speed Internet, high-definition video, cell phones, and tweets, it is easy to forget to stop, look, and listen. Much of the landscape is taken for granted because people are busy keeping busy with their cubed virtual worlds constructed through data beamed off satellites. Savisky takes the accelerating technology and flips it around, so that audiences can see their lives with a slower, brighter light.

With the frequent advances in technology, many artists utilize more portable means of video projections onto architecture. Savisky, an established artist, approaches this medium with an expertise and a sensitivity to locations that make his work unique. His innovative and experimental film, video, performance, and site-specific installations express his creative and skilled finesse that leaves audiences awe-inspired and contemplative.

His previous projects, such as E/x, presented by Aurora Picture Show in Houston, Texas, at the Buffalo Bayou East End Silo Site, demonstrate the complexity of his work. E/x consisted of four videos of viewers' images captured with live feeds from video cameras at the event; these were layered with old film footage and then projected in real time over four abandoned grain silos. E/x evoked themes of defense, confinement, emergence, and transformation as each silo depicted an individual person. It expressed the dualities of being comforted and constrained, in a group and as an individual. Audiences interacted with the work and each other as they saw their own portraits projected forty feet high while music from the Austin-based band Stars of the Lids played in the background. The band's name appropriately refers to "your own personal cinema, located between your eye and eyelid." The effect of the projections, live interactive performance, and music was a haunting stillness that breathed life into the decaying silos alongside the murky bayou landscape and Houston skyline.

For Northern Spark, Savisky continues to explore large-scale outdoor projection on architectural spaces with E/x MN. With multiple video projections layered and montaged over the silos of the Gold Medal flour mills in Minneapolis, Savisky will animate the structure with the help of attending participants. At the event, live-feed videos of people will be projected onto the massive silos, making these festival visitors appear to move through the huge silos and interact with each other, unfolding a broken and spontaneous narrative. The video projections will create a beautiful and immersive transformation of the silos that reinterprets a sense of place and space, leaving Northern Spark audiences with a new memory and experience.

B43

Kabomelette

W River Parkway at Stone Arch Bridge

Kabomelette serves up omelettes and other delicious breakfast items on one side. And on the other side, you guessed it, a variety of flavored Kabobs, such as jerk, satay, curry, and even caprese salad. We are also proud to offer quality coffee and great sandwich options.

B44

The MidNord Empanada Truck

W River Parkway at Stone Arch Bridge

Traditional Spanish empanadas, Minnesota-style.

B38

Mötley Crews Heavy Metal Grill

W River Parkway at Third Avenue Bridge

Mötley Crews Heavy Metal Grill is the Twin Cities' hottest food truck. Our menu ranges from our Almost Famous Funky Philly to our Southern Chick. Our Sully's Sweet and Heat Pretzels are incredible but watch out—they're habit forming.

B39*Paradise Coffee Roasters
W River Parkway at Third Avenue Bridge

Serving cold brew single origin coffee at Northern Spark!

A24*Potter's Pasties
Orchestra Hall, 1111 Nicollet Mall

Potter's peddles traditional English pasties with a twist, hand-held pies filled with meat and vegetables. Fillings range from chicken, pork, and beef to housemade sausage and "Thai Veg." Potter's also serves sweets straight from the UK, a dessert pastry called Banoffee Pie, tea, and Vietnamese coffee.

B45*Sassy Spoon
W River Parkway at Stone Arch Bridge

Sassy Spoon serves homemade real food! Everything is naturally gluten free because our food focus is on meats and vegetables. All our proteins are locally sourced and we use organic when possible. This is clean food that makes you feel good! Vegan and gluten-free options.

B46*Scratch Food Truck
W River Parkway at Stone Arch Bridge

Freshly made to order fare with an Asian influence. Sandwiches on toasted rolls, homemade pickles, sauces, soups, and crispy fried salt and vinegar chips. Including our fan favorites: Sesame Beef and the Spicy Garlic Mock Duck. Everything is cooked from scratch with a sustainable mind.

E30*She Royal Coffee Company
Minneapolis College of Art and Design,
2501 Stevens Avenue

Serving Ethiopian veggie sampler, chicken curry, chapati wrap, gyro, killer sambusas, and coffee. Vegetarian and vegan options.

A25*Taco Taxi
Gamut Gallery, 1006 Marquette Avenue S

Taco Taxi offers dishes straight from the brothers' hometown, such as our famous pork, chicken, and beef burritos and tacos.

B40*Tiki Tim's
W River Parkway at Third Avenue Bridge

Tiki Tim's creates tasty, tropically inspired plates served in a fun and affordable fashion. Our signature items include fish tacos, crab cakes, and a kalua pork sandwich.

B47*TOT BOSS
W River Parkway at Stone Arch Bridge

The TOT BOSS food truck specializes in tater tot concoctions, such as Poutine Tots, Tater Tot Nachos, Chili Tots, and more. Owner/operator knows ASL. Gluten-free options.

B48*Verdant Tea
W River Parkway at Stone Arch Bridge

New South Minneapolis teahouse favorite Verdant Tea serves homemade chai and kombucha plus a variety of Chinese teas and herbal blends.

E31*WildEarth WoodFired Mobile Pizza Bakery
Midtown Greenway Peace Coffee HQ and Roastery, on the Greenway at 21st Avenue

9:01 pm–2 am

Mobile wood-fired pizza from an authentic Italian oven on an artisan sourdough maple crust with a focus on sustainable local toppings. Pizza with a sense of place.

B41*World Street Kitchen Food Truck
W River Parkway at Third Avenue Bridge

World Street Kitchen features a seasonal menu made from highest quality ingredients, presented in a fun way: street style. Our cuisine is inspired by the food served in street carts around the world, from Morocco to Vietnam.

ART + SOCIAL PRACTICE
IN THE MIDWEST
SEPTEMBER 4 – 7, 2014
FARGO PLAINS ART MUSEUM

WHAT Socially engaged art has gained recent momentum, though it has long roots in community arts, social and political movements, feminist art, and more. Join a distinguished group of socially committed artists and arts leaders to build a more connected network and community of practice in the Midwest.

WITH Keynotes by Christine Baeumler, University of Minnesota-Twin Cities, Jackie Brookner, New York City and Fargo, Roger Cummings, Juxtaposition Arts, Minneapolis, & Michael J. Strand, North Dakota State University, Fargo, and panels and conversations featuring more than two dozen other socially engaged artists and arts leaders.

FOR Artists, arts leaders, curators, faculty, students, and others interested in the role of art in social change, environmental issues, community development, and strengthened human connections.

HOW For more information and registration, go to www.plainsart.org. Registration opens June 30th. For questions, contact Karis Thompson, community engagement liaison, at ktompson@plainsart.org or 701.551.6101.

Central Time Centric is supported in part by grants from the Bush Foundation's Community Innovation Program and the North Dakota Humanities Council, a nonprofit independent state partner of the National Endowment for the Humanities, and by co-sponsorships with the Department of Visual Arts, North Dakota State University, the Fargo Theatre and Hotel Donaldson.
